Dear Mr. Bradley and Team,

How is everything going? I saw the results from Liverpool and we did pretty well. Who ran the 1st flight? (I noticed Steve and Dave ran 2nd flight)

Did you go back to Penn State last week? What trip is worth it for experience and just the atmosphere of the big college. Did ~~everyone~~ everyone make carflew this time? (If you went)

I've been doing well. I love the program here. We are very young. Our top 7 consists of 3 freshmen and 4 sophomores. And we have many other talented freshmen very close. Our running group is pretty close. (about a minute to 2 depending on course) We run in groups often. I was 8th man on team on a flat Buffalo course a few weeks ago but on our hilly, muddy course (it rained the whole race) I was 6th man, about 6 seconds behind 5th man. I came in 10th overall in our ~~the~~ tri-meet vs. Cotland and Binghamton.

By the way guys, if you think that Death Mountain or even Union Endicott - at Homestead (for those who run it) are ~~so~~ considered hills, well, I invite you to come to one of my practices on Wednesday or even on regular 8 mile runs - where hills are more like mountains. Our course hill is 600 meters long and climbs and winds up at about a 50° angle or more sometimes.

Are you getting into the M^cQ invite made? It is only a few weeks away. Seniors, enjoy it, even all the hard work, because there is nothing better in all the country than that meet. Everyone I run with here talks about it and how great the whole experience was. So, regardless of performance in the race, be proud of what you've accomplished for the entire experience.

I run up against Cusack and Cusack in 2 weeks at Le Moyne and then at Geneseo. It should be interesting. Anyone want to wager on anybody? (kidding)

By the way Mr. Bradley, you still owe me a white shield from outdoor sectionals. It is not really important now but someday I want the proof for bragging rights and story telling.

Well, everyone, keep on training hard. Still pay off. And start setting your sights on Bittsford. They've given you something to run for, so use them. Hunt them down in races. You want to beat them when it counts, Sectionals. And for them. Surprise them when they have let their talent and victories turn them into cocky-labeled seeking winners. They're not invincible. Good luck.

Sincerely,

Marc Dori

P.S. Any seniors interested in that want to see the school program - get in touch with my mom Carol Heffernon - 225-2729. She'll relay the message and I'd be glad to put you up in my room.
